

CARLY HEGARTY

crhegarty@ucsc.edu

Santa Cruz, CA

chegarty.com

PROFILE

I am an incoming fourth year university student double majoring in literature and history. I am committed to understanding the complexities of historical perspectives and motivated to develop my skills as a writer, researcher, and activist in a professional setting.

ACADEMIC

European Racism and Antiracism Final Paper – June 2022

Research paper on how anti-racist platforms employ strategic essentialism, with particular focus on the Negritude movement and the criticism this ideology faced from the political philosopher Frantz Fanon
<https://chegarty.com/antiracism.pdf>

William Shakespeare Essay – February 2022

Textual analysis of biblical allusions in Shakespeare's Second Tetralogy, and how the relationship between religion and political ideology is questioned throughout these four plays and through the form of theater
<https://chegarty.com/shakespeare.pdf>

Ancient Japanese History Final Essay – December 2021

Research based analysis of the role of Buddhism in the Japanese imperial state and the varying degrees of political power and influence this religion held throughout the premodern period
<https://chegarty.com/buddhism.pdf>

Rhetoric and Inquiry Research Paper – March 2020

Analysis based discussion of the term intersectionality as it applies to contemporary feminist theory and how the implications of this term must be tangibly implemented if the movement is to progress
<https://chegarty.com/feminism.pdf>

Ancient to Early Modern Jewish History Midterm – December 2020

Examination of the historical origins of the three Abrahamic religions, their subsequent divisions, and how the complex histories of Christianity, Judaism, and Islam are inextricably connected
<https://chegarty.com/abrahamicreligions.pdf>

EDUCATION

University of California, Santa Cruz – Class of 2023

Bachelor of Arts, Literature & Bachelor of Arts, History

Areas of Interest: intersectional feminist theory, postcolonial studies, Latin American historical and contemporary politics, global development of socialism, and the relationship between religion and systems of power